

Are you interested in the Earth and its history; the investigation of environments as diverse as deep seas to the polar ice caps; the story of evolution; and modern day debates surrounding energy supply and climate change? Then we invite you to join the oldest geological society in the world...

The 'Friends of the Geological Society' scheme is open to all those with an interest in geology at a non-professional level. Our aim is to encourage Earth science enthusiasts to broaden their knowledge of the subject through association with the Geological Society and participation in its activities.

Benefits of the Friends Scheme
