MAKE A SEISMIC IMPACT WITH YOUR BRAND

Established in 1807, the Geological Society holds the distinction of being the world's oldest national geological society. Our mission is to champion geoscience, foster curiosity about the natural world and support science, profession and society.

The Society's events are renowned for their excellence and impact in the field of geoscience. We take pride in curating experiences that not only offer valuable insights and knowledge-sharing but also foster innovation and collaboration.

Our conferences, events and specialised training programs are led by geoscience experts and leaders, ensuring that attendees gain access to the latest research, technologies, and emerging trends. We create an environment where meaningful connections are forged, ideas are exchanged, and solutions to critical challenges are explored.

Staying Oriented: Approaches to Borehole Imaging After Nearly 100 Years of Progress

Dipmeter and borehole image evaluations revolutionized subsurface characterization from the earliest devices invented to delineate bed attitude 90 years ago. Progressive technological advancements now permit detailed studies concerning sedimentology and stratigraphy, structure, and geomechanics in downhole settings probed by traditional O&G exploration and development, carbon capture, utilization, and storage (CCUS), geothermal energy, mining, waste containment, and engineering programs.

Despite the utility of borehole image evaluations, nearly 25 years have passed since analysts gathered in a dedicated session to explore developments in tool technologies, quality-control methodologies, and subsurface applications with the purpose of documenting and consolidating the current state of knowledge. Likewise, few discussions have focused on adopting borehole images in logging programs outside of traditional markets.
