Geological Society Virtual Careers Days

Why a career in geoscience?

We will be opening the Careers Days with a general introductory session to discuss careers in geoscience. The following days will be focusing in more detail on specific key areas of career opportunities within geoscience.

This will be an opportunity for geoscience undergraduates and postgraduates to find out how to forge a career in the Earth sciences.

Over the course of 4 days, our dynamic programme will include presentations covering various career options open to anyone with a degree in geoscience. There will also be an opportunity to meet industry professionals for interview, CV and networking advice.

Registration is free, however pre-booking is essential due to numbers being limited. Delegates will receive a student manual and timetable.
